Calling all Cat-lovers.

We just received a release from the American Feline Society, Inc. plugging its Cat Week which is November 6-12.

In a lengthy article the president of the American Feline Society has much to say about the much maligned cat concerning his ability to catch and eat birds.

It just ain't so, says Mr. Kendall.

To prove his point Mr. Kendall, with the approval of the Society, went out and over a period of time had 193 cats dissected which had been killed on the highways.

Here is the report on the contents:

Mouse meat	38.1%
Young rabbit	25.8%
Rat	11.4%
Table scraps (including vegetables)	6.9%
Pork	2.7%
Turtle and fish	2.4%
Chicken	2.4%
Grasshoppers	1.5%
Bulk matter (including cat food fillers)	1.8%
Grass, herbs, hair and liquid	1.2%

Now as Mr. Kendall points out, the complete absence of bird meat or even feathers.

He claims that about the only time a cat actually gets a bird is when some person keeps in practice by shooting a bird. The cat just picks up the bird after it is shot.

Returning to Laverne Wells the other day talk about the deer hunt that he and some Murray boys went on in the game refuge across the lake.

Bows and arrows were the only weapons allowed.

Laverne said that Steve Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cook Sanders, shot one deer right between the eyes and knocked the deer down. The deer bawled like a calf according to Laverne until it finally jumped up and ran off. Steve had stunned it with a powerful shot between the eyes.

Steve says he didn't know why he didn't put another arrow into the deer while it was on the ground. In fact, he said he had time to hit him three more times. Steve need not be ashamed about not following through. Far more experienced hunters than he have been in the same spot and just didn't act. Freezing some folks call it. After all a deer is a pretty big animal.

Laverne went on to say that Hugh Massey almost got a deer as the light was beginning to fade. He called down on a deer as they were starting to leave the refuge. A small tree got in the way and the deer took off through the underbrush. Laverne says the arrow went into the tree a couple of inches and had it hit the deer it would have been a goner.

Those boys are crack shots with the bow and arrow, and can stand up favorably with a number of quills.

Chandler Promises Aid To Institutions

WHITESBURG, Oct. 19 (AP)—A. B. Chandler, who injected the issue of state charitable and penal institutions into the August primary, promised again Tuesday night to rehabilitate them if he is elected governor.

Chandler, who continued his tour of the 7th District today, will appear with Sen. Alben W. Barkley (D-Ky.), a primary foe, at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Pikeville.

Speaking to a crowd of 500 persons in the Letcher County Courthouse here, Chandler said, "I have a plan to help these institutions."

He also promised larger old age pensions, more highways, better bridges, and a fully supported Minimum Foundation Program for Education.

He attacked the record of his GOP opponent, Edwin R. Denney, while Denney was a member of the General Assembly in 1946, and charged again that the Lexington Republican "voted against the interests of the people."

Chilly Weather Discourages Fishing

FRANKFORT, Oct. 19 (AP)—Chilly and wet weather during the past few days has discouraged both anglers and fish at various Kentucky lakes, according to a report issued Monday by the state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The department added, however, that cooler temperatures should greatly improve the catch as soon as the weather permits fishermen to scout the lakes and streams again.

Crappie, bluegill and bass are listed as fair catches at Dale Hollow, with crappie, bass and bluegill are the top catches at Lake Cumberland. Kentucky Lake has been too rough for fishing recently, but a few braver anglers are taking some bass.

Herrington Lake listed crappie as its top offering with a few good bass catches also reported.

Princess Faces Opposition To Marriage Tonight At Dinner

By HAROLD M. WILLARD
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret faces tonight at a state dinner the leaders of the Church of England—the bishops and archbishops—who oppose her marriage to Peter Townsend.

The state dinner for the royal family gave the outspoken Archbishop of Canterbury an opportunity to deliver his verdict whether the church will use all its power to block a wedding.

The dinner at Lambeth Palace was the fourth of five crucial moments in the unfolding romance.

There were three Tuesdays. Prime Minister Anthony Eden met with his cabinet to discuss the legal implications of such a wedding. Then Eden went to see the Queen.

While they talked, Princess Margaret received Townsend once more—their sixth date in six days.

The fifth major event of the week came Thursday when Eden, believed fully briefed in an unusual 90-minute call on the queen, another cabinet meeting at No. 10 Downing St.

Tonight's dinner was a crucial one though the conversation may never be made public. It brought Margaret together with her sister the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh who scowled behind dark glasses Tuesday when he was caught and detained by the throng in front of Clarence House. He is reported leading the opposition to the wedding.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, could not sanction the marriage. But it was still unknown whether he would let the Church of England in condemning it if Margaret chose to wed Townsend outside the state church.

Denney Charges Chandler Avoiding

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 19 (AP)—Edwin R. Denney, GOP nominee for governor, charged in an address before 125 ministers here Tuesday night that his Democratic opponent, A. B. Chandler, has avoided appearing on the same program with him on 11 separate occasions.

Denney made the charge as Joseph J. Leary, Frankfort, Chandler's campaign co-chairman, spoke instead of the Versailles Democrat.

"I don't have anybody talking for me," Denney said. "I want to talk to you myself."

He charged that the only four-lane highway built during Chandler's administration was "from a swimming pool in Versailles to a golf course in Lexington."

He reiterated his earlier charge—also made by Democrats during the August primary campaign—that Leary got $213,000 for collecting back taxes under Chandler's administration. "If you were to give me that, I'd sit up nights and manage your campaign for you," Denney said.

He also told the pastors that he wants to operate within the state's present tax structure, if possible, but that more money might be necessary to fully support the Minimum Foundation Program for Education.

Resigns From Western Board Of Regents

BOWLING GREEN, Oct. 19 (AP)—John P. Masters, the lone member of the Western Kentucky State College Board of Regents who voted against the election of E. Kelly Thompson as Western's new president, resigned Tuesday.

Masters, a theater operator here who was appointed to the board by former Gov. Keen Johnson 12 years ago, said in announcing his resignation: "There has been too much grief already, and I feel I have served long enough."

The governor has appointed three new regents and in fairness to them, I feel I should resign. The operations of the board are different now from what they used to be."

Several Murray Merchants attended the 1955 Spring Merchandise Show which was held at the Peabody Hotel in Memphis this past weekend.

All lines of merchandise are exhibited during this annual spring showing. The buyers from dress shops, department stores, etc., from over the entire mid-south see the latest materials, styles and colors as they are being shown and make their selections for the coming spring.

The Mid-South Association and the Cotton States Association were in charge of the Peabody showing.

Those making the trip from Murray were Mrs. Frank Albert, Stubblefield, Mrs. Lottie Thornton and Mr. Russell Johnson, who made the trip together. They left by automobile Monday morning. Mrs. Thornton and Mrs. Stubblefield own the Town and College Shop and Mr. Johnson owns the Style Shop.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Littleton left Sunday afternoon to attend the showing. They visited relatives in Humboldt Sunday night. After attending the Memphis showing, they returned to Murray Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Littleton own Littleton's Department Store.

Two other guests on the show Tuesday night both advanced to the $10,000 plateau. The Rev. Alvin B. Kershaw of Oxford, Ohio, waded through a four-part poster on jazz to double his stake of $500 to $1,000.

Don E. Self, a Texas physicist now employed at Lake Success, N.Y., answered a question in the category, mythology, in his climb up the big money ladder.

Both guests will return next week for a possible shot at $32,000.

BOND SALES

During the first nine months of this year the citizens of Calloway County purchased $205,008 in Series E and H Savings Bonds for 63.3% of the county's annual goal of $324,500. Sales for September were $19,387.

Throughout Kentucky during September sales of Series E and H Bonds amounted to $4,857,293. Cumulative sales for the state during the nine months totaled $51,226,673, or 81.05% of the annual goal of $63,200,000.

Wetherby drew laughs from other southern growers here Tuesday when he told them "On Dec. 13 I'll have some well-trained public employees that will be available to you fellows."

Get Acquainted With Your Health Department

Question: What Services Does Your Health Department Give You?
Answer: Rabies is a problem that affects all of the people in our county. Each year your county Health Department sponsors rabies clinics throughout the county to make it convenient for you to have your dog immunized. Public Health Officials investigate when a suspicious dog is reported. Dogs are also quarantined by the Health Department when they have bitten any person. This is extremely important because the dog owner as well as the person bitten is being protected. Working together we can eliminate the rabies problem from our country.

GOOD MEDICINE

Anyone who has taken over a losing business and nursed it back to economic health and well-being can understand the effect of the report of Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey on President Eisenhower, now in his fourth week of recovery from a heart attack he suffered at Denver, Colorado.

It is always a strain on any man to take over the sort of "mess" he inherited from the Truman regime, and it has been much harder on him than it would be on a less conscientious person. In recent months it has been difficult at times to determine whether the Eisenhower fiscal program was a wise one. A report which indicates to him that it is will undoubtedly be "good medicine" for him.

Of course we cannot hope to have a wholesome economy with more than 20% of our people who live on farms having to sell their products for less than it costs to produce them, and Secretary of Agriculture Benson has been too slow in adopting measures designed to halt the falling price of farm products at a time when everything the farmer needs is going up in price.

It seems that he has at last agreed that something must be done and we sincerely hope it will be attended to before this year's crop has been disposed of at a loss. We believe the success of the New Deal was largely because it recognized agriculture as the foundation on which our entire economy rests, and moved swiftly to correct evils that had caused hundreds of thousands of farmers to leave the land forever.

Accustomed as we are to deficits that run as high as ten or eleven billion dollars the report by Humphrey that the current deficit will be only one billion seven hundred million is encouraging, and his prediction that come next July first even it can be wiped out and the budget placed in balance, is the best fiscal news the nation has had in years.

While the Secretary did not mention taxes in his report to the President he told newsmen afterwards that income taxes are entirely too high and there is very reason to believe that reduced expenditures and increased revenues will justify Congress in making slight reductions next year and substantial ones a year later.

Opponents of the administration are already raising the issue of defense as a leading one in next year's political campaign, accusing the President of cutting our armed forces in order to balance the budget, but unless more evidence that our defense has been neglected is revealed we don't believe they will get very far with their complaints.

For many years before General Eisenhower became President Eisenhower the upkeep of our armed forces was our Number One cause of federal deficits, the Number One sink-hole, or agency of waste.

We do not say that as criticism of the armed forces. We merely mean to imply that war, or preparation for war, is waste in an economic sense, that a battle-ship, for instance, means nothing towards increasing our standard of living, but on the contrary lowers it, even though we all readily admit it is necessary to build and maintain battleships. But we also believe an army general can better eliminate waste in the armed forces than most anybody else.

At any rate since General Eisenhower became President we have saved an estimated thirty-six billion dollars, have the budget at least within sight of a balance and have better prospects for tax reductions. And Secretary Humphrey's report gives the nation hope that we can enjoy prosperity for some time to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeddie Cathey are building a new brick veneer home on West Main Street. They have sold their home on West Poplar to Mrs. Gheen of Benton.

Mr. and Mrs. Deck Story observed their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at their home in Porter Court near Paris, Tenn.

Hafford Story of Murray is a son of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Irvin have returned to their home in Albuquerque, N.M., following a two weeks visit with Mr. Irvin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Irvin.

Key to Romance?

SIGNIFICANCE is speculated in Britain into the fact that Dr. Geoffrey Fisher (above), archbishop of Canterbury, and Queen Elizabeth and other members of the royal family will dine together Oct. 19. The archbishop, spiritual head of the Church of England, is a key figure in royal romances, and Oct. 19 will be scarcely a week after arrival home of Capt. Peter Townsend, reportedly Princess Margaret's love interest. (International)

BACKSTAIRS AT THE WHITEHOUSE

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
DENVER 19 — Backstairs at the Denver White House: President Eisenhower's taste in birthday gifts has undergone no change just because he is in the hospital. He much prefers things that can be used later on his farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

If Mr. Eisenhower had not suffered a heart attack, he probably would have returned to Washington shortly after his birthday.

The public hears a lot about the nurses and carpenters around the President. In fact, the White House has published the names of every person having anything to do with the case.

There are however eight unsung heroes at the Lowry Field White House office. These are the Air Force enlisted men who over and above their normal duties, have volunteered for the extra work involved in keeping the offices, the big conference room and the White House press room clean.

All of the young men are students at Lowry and their clean-up chores offer no excuse for missing classes. They attend to their technical studies, and sweep in their spare time.

Here are the intrepid volunteers who man the brooms at what seems to be, all hours of the day and night:

Sports Parade

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK 19 — Such post-season football spectacles as the Rose, Sugar, Orange and Cotton Bowls had better get on the ball today or they're going to lose their standings to an extravaganza known as the Milk Bowl.

This is one late season event which is aptly named. It's between the finest pee-wee football teams of two nations — Texas and the United States.

Come Dec. 10 at San Antonio, Tex., the best team of youngsters between 10 and 15 years of age in the Lone Star State will play a team judged as the best in the other 47 states.

It will be staged, this seventh annual Milk Bowl game, in the shadow of the Alamo. But on this one day at least, Davey Crockett will run a poor second to Davey O'Brien.

Refereed By Heroes
O'Brien, you'll recall, was a marksman in the true Crockett

SUGGESTS OCTOBER PLANTING OF BULBS

Bulbs of tulips, jonquils, hyacinths and crocuses usually do better when planted in October than in November, says Prof. N. R. Elliott, horticulturist at the University of Kentucky. Early planting gives the bulbs time to get established before winter, and they will then be ready for early spring blooming.

Although good-sized bulbs cost a little more than the smaller ones, they will produce the best flowers and continue to produce more good bulbs. Smooth flat ones are preferred over the rounder shapes, said Mr. Elliott.

Soil preparation is very important. The ground should be spaded 8 to 10 inches deep, then worked until it is in excellent condition. Sand or coal ashes worked into heavy, compact soil will loosen it and make better growing conditions. Bone meal is an especially good fertilizer to use, as it is slow acting and does not burn even though it comes in contact with the bulbs. Use about one tablespoonful at the soil where each bulb is to be planted. Bone meal can now be bought in 3 and 10-pound packages, and is good for roses and other flowers also.

Bulbs of spring flowers should be set so that the tops are 4 inches below the surface of the ground. This depth will delay their coming up at the first hint of spring sunshine, and also make for hardy stems. Allow about 6 inches of space between bulbs.

Well rotted manure may be spread on top of the soil after the bulbs are planted, but should not be mixed with the soil as it may burn the bulbs.

Mike Lane Biggest Actor In Town

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD 19 — Mike Lane can call himself the biggest actor in town today, not because he's won any Oscars, but because he towers 6 feet, 9 inches into the Hollywood smog.

Mike, a 24-year-old wrestler, is movietown's male Cinderella of the year, in a giant-size package. He's never acted a day in his life, but his size brought him a top role in one of the most important movies of the year, "The Harder They Fall."

The wrestler will co-star with Humphrey Bogart, a sort of Mutt-and-Jeff combination—in the film that will "expose" boxing the way "On the Waterfront" dissected unions. Both movies were written by Budd Shulberg and made at Columbia Studio.

Brawny, 275-pound Lane snared the part of the boxer which most guess-who readers of the novel figured was patterned after Primo Carnera.

Takes Role Calmly
Lane is taking his controversial role very calmly.

"I am confident I can do the part," he said. "I never had any trouble with anything else in my life. If other roles come along, I'd like to stay here."

Lane was uncovered by the studio's talent search for an unknown (and this time they meant it) to fill a pair of size 18 shoes. Talent scout Max Anthony combed "Tip-Topper" clubs, circuses and college sports in 15 cities before finding Mike wrestling in Houston, Tex.

Mike's shoes are size 12, but he won the job, anyway.

I found the new actor getting in shape in the studio gym. If you climb on a ladder, you can see he is dark-haired, good-looking and wearing measurements of 32-36-44.

Mike hails from Philadelphia, but his parents live now in Clayton, N. J.

Mike Dislikes Boxing
"I never liked school," Mike said. "I felt the teachers picked on me. I was so big they would catch me at everything."

"After high school I took up wrestling in a circus. My parents weren't too happy. After two years I figured I was good enough to go on my own and I've been a professional wrestler for four years."

Mike is soft-spoken, has nice manners and eats three average-size meals a day, usually steak. He's not worried about being in a movie that pokes boxing.

"I don't like boxing, either," he confessed. "Boxing is deteriorating to the body. Wrestling is body-building. And it's no fake. You don't get these scars and cauliflower ears from acting in the ring."

CHAPTER NINETEEN

JANE looked around, saw a fallen tree and sat down, pulling out of her pocket a package of cigarettes. When she did not speak, Lois added, "What was Roger's goal in life?"

"You've been reading Adler," the older woman said with a quick smile. "A man's goal determines all his actions. Maybe, Roger's goal," she added thoughtfully, "was giving people what they wanted."

"A pretty big order," Lois commented.

"You know, Mrs. Fleming," Jane flicked ashes from her cigarette and clasped her arms around her knees, looking through the streaked sunlight on the leaves, "as a rule we expect so much more of others than we do of ourselves. We are impatient when they don't change their habits to suit us, but don't bother to change our own. All that, but Roger was different. He tried to make himself what others wanted him to be and he took them at their own valuation. Better than their own valuation. He simplified them because he was a very simple man, and he heightened their good qualities because he was essentially romantic."

"Tears filled her eyes but she did not bother to wipe them away. 'I'll love him till I die,' she said simply. 'He's in my bones.' After a moment she went on, 'There is a time in the life of most of us when we lose our sense of wonder, our expectation of adventure lurking behind the bend in the road, our belief in magic hiding behind a stone. Roger never lost that quality. He carried it with him always. He communicated a sense of heightened experience to those around him. The weather was never gray where he was. 'You have a big job, Mrs. Fleming; try, if you can, to make him real. He wanted so desperately to be real. And he blundered so disastrously. So, disastrously.' She put out her cigarette, taking her time.

"It's coming now, Lois thought, what she really wants of me."

Jane stretched out her legs, staring at her sturdy boots. "Mignonne has spoken of you so often. She calls you a kind of divining rod with a curious ability to get inside other people's skins, think with their minds, feel with their nerves. I don't know how you go about it, probably you don't know either. I write factual stuff myself. But try if you can to find Roger. But that wasn't what she had meant to say, Lois thought.

"He could have been a great

On Kentucky Farms

Mercer county farmers learned how to identify 12 to 15 tobacco diseases and the controls for them. Many county agents reported that tobacco was high in quality, good size and ripe when cut. Twenty-eight of the 32 consolidated schools in Pike county now have 4-H clubs. Mason county 4-H club members exhibited Guernsey, Jersey and Brown-Swiss cattle at fairs at Germantown and Flemingsburg. Webster county homemakers restored 463 picture frames the past year.

Business, professional and farm people built silos this year, most of which were filled with corn and sorghum.

Seventeen homemakers modeled basic dresses with appropriate accessories in a style show in Butler county.

Approximately 800 entries were made by 4-H club girls in the Jefferson county fair.

The success of farmers growing tobacco on sod land has caused many Hardin county farmers to consider using such land next year.

Hundreds of bushels of tomatoes rotted or were fed to hogs in Russell county, due to lack of market.

Card Chief Starts Deals

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Lane completed his first two deals as general manager of the Cardinals today but they were small potatoes compared with the ones he would like to make for either Wally Post or Frank Thomas.

In his first player maneuvers since coming to the Cards from the White Sox, Lane obtained outfielder Archie Wilson by turning over pitcher Tony Jacobs and cash to Toronto of the International League, and then purchased Eddie Kasko, whom he described as a "fine young shortstop prospect" from Richmond of the same circuit.

Lane's primary target, however, is a right-handed power hitter like Post, who drove in 108 runs and slotted 40 homers for Cincinnati this year, or Thomas, who hit 25 homers and drove in 71 runs despite having a poor year with Pittsburgh.

Loaded lopsided with left-handed hitters such as Stan Musial, Wally Moon, Bill Virdon, Solly Hemus, Joe Frazier and rookie infielder Don Blasingame, who is being groomed for a regular berth in 1956, the Cardinals realized their desperate need for a strong right-handed hitter on the order of Post or Thomas, even before Lane took over as general manager.

So far, the Cards' chief trade bait has been veteran second baseman Al "Red" Schoendienst, an infield fixture at St. Louis since 1945.

If Schoendienst does move on, the promising, 23-year-old Blasingame would be given important consideration for the second base job.

But the Redlegs haven't the slightest intention of parting with Post for Schoendienst alone and the Pirates aren't overly interested in the red-haired Cardinal switch hitter because of his $40,000 salary, which is more than they pay their entire infield.

Redlegs Want Brandt
Recent negotiations between Lane and general manager Gabe Paul of Cincinnati hit a snag when Paul started inquiries about Jackie Brandt, the 21-year-old right-handed hitting outfielder with Rochester who was voted the "rookie of the year" in the International League.

Lane said Paul offered $100,000 for Brandt and that bid automatically assured him the youngster was worth $40,000.

If the Cardinals can't land Post or Thomas, they might turn their attention possibly toward Bobby Thomson of Milwaukee or Del Ennis of the Phillies.

Greyhound Bus Crashes Truck

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Oct. 15 (AP) — A cross-country double-decker Greyhound bus crashed into a parked trailer truck early today, killing six persons and injuring 18 others.

Police said the bus, en route from Chicago to Boston, rammed into the rear of the steel-laden truck on the side of U.S. 20. Most of the bus passengers were on their way from Los Angeles to Boston, police said.

The dead:
Sol Sender, 44, Chicago.
Mrs. Charles G. Roth, 50, Lafayette's Hill, Pa.
Anthony W. Bruno, Bloomington, Calif.
Sylvia Money, 36, York, Pa.
Two unidentified women.

The injured were taken to St. Anthony's Hospital and Doctors Hospital, both in Michigan City. An overcrowded emergency room at both hospitals caused officials to transfer some of the injured to the Spaulding Hotel.

In critical condition at Doctors Hospital was the driver of the bus, Thomas Locke, 40, Effingham, Ill. The truck driver, Harry Williams, 43, Oak Lawn, Ill., was in fair condition.

Police said the bus collided with the truck, also eastbound, three miles east of Michigan City. They said the truck came to rest on top of the bus, trapping some of the passengers.

Working crews, firemen and squads of ambulance workers mobilized by state police helped free the trapped passengers and take the dead to nearby funeral homes.

'BRAIN TRUST' BEHIND ADENAUER

Chancellor Adenauer, ailing.

Vice Chancellor Bluecher

Karl Arnold, 54, premier of North Rhine-Westphalia.
Heinrich Von Brentano, 51, foreign minister.
Ludwig Erhardt, father of German economic recovery.

WEST GERMANY's government, headed by ailing, 79-year-old Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, is backstopped by a "brain trust" which, it is believed, would administer the government in event he passes from the political scene. In addition to Vice Chancellor Franz Bluecher and other officials shown here, the "brain trust" includes Kurt Georg Kiesinger, 51, parliamentary chairman of foreign affairs; Secretary of State Hans Globke; Robert Pfordmanger, banker and Christian Democratic party deputy and Adenauer's friend for 35 years; Finance Minister Fritz Schafer. One of these likely would take the helm to continue the "strong man's" pro-West course in international affairs. (International)
